Redesigning Acute Services – staff update sessions

We are currently half way through the second round of acute specialty redesign meetings. These meetings are looking in more detail at how these services need to be redesigned, so they can meet the needs of our local population in a safe, sustainable way both now and in the future. Clinicians and patient representatives have come together to redesign services against two target operating models and to start to examine the potential implications of any change. Firstly, looking at modest reconfiguration; involving e.g. more collaboration with internal and external partners and redesigning clinical pathways so that we make the most of people’s skills and increase efficiency and effectiveness. The second, looking at significant reconfiguration; involving e.g. potentially rescoping what we provide and what we could potentially transfer back to the Island (e.g. pre and post-operative payments) and what we may need to transfer off Island or to other providers, to provide the required level of quality, access and affordability for those who need specialist services.

We have also produced a further update for staff wanting to know more about the process and we are running a series of staff drop-ins which will give you a chance to hear a short presentation and take part in an informal Q&A session. There is no need to book, just turn up at the start on the day, dates as follows:

Improving our news and information

We’re currently working on a new and improved website for the My Life a Full Life. We’re giving it a fresh clean look, better navigation tools, improved accessibility (ability to change to larger fonts, different languages, browse aloud etc.), easy to read text and much greater clarity about the different aspects of the new model of care. We will be undertaking some user testing before the site goes live and will let you know how and when you can share your thoughts on the new site with us. Watch this space for more updates!

NHS England Next Steps on the Five Year Forward View

NHS England has published its plan setting out how it will deliver practical improvements in areas prized by patients and the public – cancer, mental health and GP access. The plan also looks at how the NHS can transform the way that care is delivered to ease pressure on hospitals, by helping frail and older people live healthier, more independent lives. The work we are doing, as one of the national vanguards to develop a new care model on the Island, is in line with these aims.
